

I think that instead of setting a limit on how many broadcast stations can be owned by one entity, they should be required to lease the station. The name should belong to the company but the time they are allowed to air, should be set by the FCC. As long as they comply with all the regulations of the FCC, they should be allowed to continue their lease.